
It was a very cold winter and the streets were very, very slippery and my visitor was telling me how slippery it was. She said, "I had a terrible time getting here. I would take one step forward and slipped backward two steps. It was awful."

I asked if that was the case how did she get to my house. And she said
"Oh, I turned around and started home."